most stupendous leap in civilization of Who would willingly leap backwards over chasm? Nobody. The statesmen of to-day must find a method of enabling men to accommodate themselves to the new order of things. On this point the Journal of Commerce says: "The statistician has not dared to at mpt the bailling task of measuring this change. Responsible economists have not yet ventured to say how far it affects the stability or the application of orthodox economic theories. Statesmen find them-selves in a new world, to the governance selves in a new world, to the governance of which their past maxims and policies are very imperfectly fitted. Legislation has to confront new problems for which it has no precedents; it hesitates, vacillates, and flounders, because it has to grope through new conditions without the aid of competent interpreters of their significance. Indeed, as to the economic aspects of this industrial revolution we are almost totally in the dark, and, over-whelmed by the magnitude of the prob-lems, are passively waiting for the new forces to work out their economic results in their own way."

Congress passed the other day a resolution directing the Commissioner of Labor to report upon "the effect of the use of machinery upon labor and the cost of pro-This resolution proposes to sught to be expert, if there are any exprogress or give a thought to its outme. Silver to Be the Issue.

The Baltimore Herald says the fact is quite apparent to general observers as well as to practical politicians, that the silver men hold the balance of power sue, but it is, in a measure, subordinate to the silver question, when its advocates see fit to bring it to the front. There is a strong likelihood, therefore, that bimetallism will take an important place in the political discussion of the coming con-gressional campaign, if it does not crys-tallize into a clean-cut issue, and fill the field of vision on the assembling of the Fifty-fourth Congress.'

What with the declarations which have recently been made by the Republican leaders and Republican papers and Re publican State and congressional district conventions, it would seem that instead of merely holding the balance of power, the silverites will be reinforced by Republicans as well as Democrats. However all parties in this country ought to make haste to secure the assembling of a new international bimetallic conference. This is what Republicans, Democrats, silverites, gold-bugs, monometallists, and bimetallists ought to work for.

A Sensible Conclusion.

In a recent issue the London Spectator devotes considerable space to the efforts being made to organize in England a crusade against lynching in the Southern United States. While it is very apparent that the Spectator does not see the situation here through unprejudiced eyes, and does not believe that lynching is rarely resorted to except to punish one particules that the matter is one in which the English people have no right to medwhere rests the responsibility for the con litions in the South which render it possible that the crime for which lynching is nostly practiced should be common. It says that it "was no wise stroke of policy which conferred the franchise on he uneducated and politically ignorant regroes-yesterday slaves, to-day complete itizens. Such a movement was revo a new and totally incalculable force int the political system, and for a time seemed likely that in some States the white vote would be entirely submerged."

REHOBOTH CHURCH DEDICATED.

Dr. Tudor Officiates and Preaches Two Powerful Sermons-Indictments. LANCASTER COURTHOUSE, VA., August 22 .- (Special.) -On Sunday Dr. Tudor, one of your eloquent divines, dedicated the new Methodist church, Rehoboth, about six miles from this place. The new about six miles from this place. The new church is a beautiful and commodious structure. It has been built after the most modern and improved plans and reflects great credit on the community. The church cost $2,700. Two thousand dollars had previously been paid, and on Sunday the remaining $700 was easily obtained from the 2,000 or more people in attendance. Dr. Tudor preached two powerful sermons to the most attentive audiences. While Hon. H. T. Duncan, who is Mayor of Lexington, Ky., was chatting with senator Lindsay at the Shoreham last evening a Post man intervened long enough to ask the former his opinion of the Breckinridge-Owens-Settle race for Congress in the Ashiand District.

"Breckinridge will win," replied his Honor, sententiously. "Don't put up any money, hats, wearing apparel, of any kind, drinks, or cigars against his return to Congress. He'll win in a walk, if I may be allowed a phrase from the turf. Honesily, I think he will get as many votes in the primaries as both his opponents. Mind you, I'm not an active partisan of his, for I am taking no special interest in the campaign, only as Billy and I were boys together, I have naturally a friendly feeling toward him. "Breckinridge has been getting the rise his hearers to such effect that friends of the opposition candidates try to keep people from going to hear him talk for fear he'll make converts to his own cause. Talk about the decadence of elequence to the marines—Breckinridge is a living witness to the contrary, for, by the power of his matchless oratory, and that alone, he has gone forth and conquered in a fight where a man of mediocrity would have been smuffed out like a candia."

Yesterday was our County-Court day. There was a special grand jury empan-elled to inquire into the violations of the fish law. Several indictments were found and the cases continued.
